TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

During September and October 2005, Dr Kwame Asumadu, Director of Asumadu & Associates worked with REDcentre to organize a VicStart creativity workshop on an innovative termite detection technology, developed by the University of Melbourne. VicStart is a Victorian Government program aimed to improve the linkages, processes and skills needed to successfully commercialise science, technology and innovation.

Dr Asumadu's role involved preparing the background material for the Workshop as well as identifying and inviting appropriate specialists and stakeholders to attend. The Workshop, which was held on Wednesday, 19th October 2005 at the Offices of REDcentre in Heidelberg, attracted over 20 participants covering specialists from a wide range of interests, industries and backgrounds related to termites and the building and construction industries. Dr Asumadu also facilitated the Workshop and wrote the report covering the outcomes and the way forward.

At REDcentre, we were very impressed with Dr Asumadu's professional approach to the task of preparing, planning and organizing the Workshop including facilitating it. He was meticulous in his approach to the tasks assigned to him and met every deadline ahead of time. We were so impressed with the outcomes Dr Asumadu achieved on this project we will have no hesitation in contracting him for future creativity workshops.

REDcentre therefore has no hesitation in recommending Dr Asumadu and his business to anybody who is looking for a professional facilitator to plan, prepare, hold and facilitate an event requiring the services of a professional coordinator and/or facilitator.

Yours sincerely

Terry Polkinghorn
